Being Human Again

What This Quest Is

Go out with your friends and family and plant seeds for fruiting plants in public spaces, parks, forests, and anywhere nature can thrive. Turn our planet into a food forest where hunger is no longer relevant. This quest is repeatable — every time counts.

Story Card

Our forests used to be full of food. Before industrialization, before timber plantations, the forests of most temperate regions were tended landscapes full of fruit trees, nut trees, berry bushes, and herbs. Then we cut them down. The Food Forestry quest is about changing that — one seed at a time, one walk at a time. If you planted just one seed every ten minutes on a one-hour walk, that is six seeds. Do that walk once a month for a year and you have planted 72 potential trees. Every seed is a move.

How To Do This Quest

Step 1: Get delicious organic fruit.

From a farmers market, local farm, or the best option available. Enjoy them while you walk. Save the seeds.

Step 2: Prepare your seeds.

Hold the seeds in your mouth for several minutes before planting. Your saliva adds your DNA, your microbiology, and your bioregion's ecosystem to the seed's surface. After the Potions quest, this is even more powerful.

Step 3: Scout your location.

Walk in public parks, forests, or green spaces. Look for places where a fruit tree could thrive: forest edges, sunny gaps, stream banks. Somewhere that will stay moist, get partial sunlight, and will not get mowed.

Step 4: Plant with intention.

Send the seeds your intentions. Push each seed into the soil a few centimeters deep. Cover it. Water if very dry. Plant multiple seeds per location.

Step 5: Mark your spots.

Note locations so you can return and see if they sprouted. A photo with GPS or a mark on a map.

Step 6: Bring friends.

Make it a celebration. Bring fruit for everyone to eat together. Make it a ritual.

Step 7: Document and share.

A short video or article of your adventure. What you planted, where, what it felt like.

Deliverable

A video (under 3 minutes) and/or written article about your food forestry adventure. This quest can be done again and again — each time earns tokens.

Tips

- Choose species that will thrive without maintenance once established. Natives are best.
- Apples, pears, plums, cherries, figs, mulberries, persimmons are great for temperate climates.
- Make it a celebration. Bring snacks, music, and joy.
