Visioning Together

What This Quest Is

Use breathwork to access an expanded state, then vision the world 20 years from now if things go well. Come back with a sensory, specific account of the future you visited. The futures we can feel our way into are different from the futures we can only think about.

Story Card

The breath is the fastest path to an altered state that most people have access to right now, without anything else. Extended intentional breathing affects CO2 and oxygen levels in ways that produce measurable shifts in consciousness: relaxation of the default mode network, quieting of the internal critic, expansion of what feels possible. Most people who try to vision a regenerative future end up listing things: solar panels, permaculture gardens. This is useful but it is not visioning. Genuine visioning is sensory and specific. You are in a place, in a time, experiencing something. After a breath session, you can feel your way in.

How To Do This Quest

Step 1: Learn the basic breathwork approach you will use.

Holotropic breathwork, Wim Hof, transformational breathing, or any intentional breathing practice you are drawn to. If new to breathwork, start with a guided online session before doing a full session alone.

Step 2: Prepare your space.

A comfortable lying-down space where you will not be interrupted for 45-90 minutes. Low light, comfortable temperature. Journal nearby for immediately after.

Step 3: Set your intention.

You are going into this session to vision a specific future: the world 20 years from now, if things go well. Hold that intention lightly as you begin.

Step 4: Do a full breathwork session.

Follow your chosen method for 30-60 minutes. Let the visioning emerge naturally. You may find yourself somewhere unexpected. Go there.

Step 5: Write or record immediately after.

While the experience is still fresh, capture everything: what you saw, where you were, who was there, what it felt like, what surprised you. Do not edit yet.

Step 6: Reflect and compose your vision document.

After a day or two, return to your notes. Shape them into a coherent account of the future you visited. Make it sensory and specific.

Step 7: Share it with the community.

Your vision is a piece of the collective picture we are building together of where we are going.

Deliverable

A sensory, specific written or recorded account of a future you visited during and after a breathwork session.

Tips

- If intense emotions arise during breathwork, stay with them. They are releases.
- The most interesting visions are usually the ones you did not plan.
- Do not drive for at least a few hours after a deep session.
- You can do this quest with a partner. One breathes, the other holds space, then switch.
